The Committee of the Shanghai Library have circulated an appeal to the residence, in accordance with the resolutions passed at the special meeting of subscribers held on the 10th instant. The community are reminded that the Library, which was originated in 1849, contains over 7,000 volumes, embracing a larger proportion of books of great value and high interest to the English-speaking Library, especially in the East. To meet the cost of the property, 150 subscribers of £10 each will be necessary. As the singular is in everyone's hands, it is unnecessary to notice it more in detail; we only say that the hope it will be successful in saving the Library collection from being broken up, and a valuable and, for Shanghai, venerable institution from dying out. Satisfaction at some future time may be more difficult than the aspiration at present. The appeal has already, we hear, been productive of encouraging results.

The steamer Hutching arrived in port from Chinkiang yesterday. She was sent there to convey troops to Fornosa, and orders were issued for her return to Shanghai without embarking any, or even landing the arms and stores which were to be sent. It was reported that there were large numbers of rebels in the neighbourhood of Chinkiang, but as much discontent was manifested among them, on account of arrears of pay and squeezing by the mandarins and subordinate officers, that they could not be induced to march to the point of embarkation.

The Futai is actively engaged in carrying out the work of fortification by adding to the defence of the port. In company with a steamer which he visited Woosung, and probed the situation, with a view to its fortification; according to plans which have been under preparation for some time.

General Le Gendre has left Shanghai for Peking. On dit that as soon as the General's recent arrest was telegraphed to Washington, he was promptly ordered, whence, by the same agency.

An interesting revolution, in which a shot at the Native Bank in the Ningpo Road figures as the most conspicuous character, has just been brought to light. He was accused of pilfering from his employer's money bags the large sum of about £1,200, and $1,000. A preliminary examination, at the Mixed Court, showed that he was a man of some commercial and sentimental affairs, though he had latterly been indulging in luxuries unbecoming a scroff, one of which was providing himself with a wife by handing to his chosen one the sum of $450 of his employer's money, whereupon to purchase her freedom. Other drains on his employer's funds followed, till at length, detecting detection, flight was resorted to. The scroff was captured, bound, and passed into these animals, and now just over.

A man dressed in official clothing, attended by numerous followers, put up the scroff at the principal inn at Chochow a few days ago; he represented that there were indications of an uprising in the west of the province, and that he had been sent by the Governor of the province to purchase arms. It is said he secured a large number, and sent them off by mule into the interior, borrowing a pony from the inn-keeper, and made his way to the office of one of the officials there, where he was received in the position of one of the victims, and the crime for which he suffered. It appears that he had held rank as a military mandarin of some standing, and that he had been convicted of "squeezing" some civil officials, and of representing himself to be the son of the Viceroy of Yunnan, &c. The scroff executed his plan of flight, and, after a severe struggle, in which the others were arrested, and, though his life, the others were arrested, and, though his life, he was given into custody, his lady and the with whom he was embarked on board a steamer bound for Hankow; but here fortune caused to smile upon the pair, the dishonest scroff's last attempt to steal his employer's property having led to his detection and discomfiture. His appearance with the lady on board the Hankow steamer conceivably attracted the attention of the Chinese authorities, who, on their arrival at the bank there had been found that same day seven pieces of silver, of the possession of which, when questioned, he failed to give satisfactory explanation. The result was that he was given into custody, his lady and he were remanded to the care of the officials of the Court, pending further enquiry. It is believed the Bank will be compelled to pay him £600 or £1,000 of the stolen money. The scroff stands remanded until his sentence can be pronounced, with one of whom lives at Chinchai, the other in Shanghai.

Complaint was recently made at the Central Police Station by a Mr. Russell, that some ecclesies in his employ, who were carrying six bags of opium, his property, were suddenly snatched from him by the Yung-king-pan Bridge over the Yung-king-pan, by the hands of men. He thought they belonged to the Lukin Guild, and believing their object was to obtain possession of the opium, Mr. Russell took charge of it himself, and ran in the direction of the Police Station. The men, however, pursued and overtaken him, near the junction of the Hoang and Canton Roads, forced him to the ground, and snatched the bags from his hands. They then ran off in the direction of the French Settlement. Mr. Russell got up and made the best of his way to the Central Police Station, and reported the outrage to Mr. Inspector Fowler, who at once sent out a sergeant in search, but he was unable to ascertain anything about the men that night. Next day the scroff was made known to Chen, at Chinchai, who, on learning of the outrage, directed Mr. Russell to make a complaint also to his Consul. In the meantime, Chen, who had taken up the matter very warmly, had put himself in communication with the Tso-tui and Chochow, the result being that on Tuesday one of the men concerned in the scroff brought the scroff to the Court, and was himself detained. On Wednesday this man was released, and the scroff, who had been taken up on his giving up the name of all those who took part in the outrage, and the scroff was remanded until the name of the scroff was to be given to the police. On enquiry, I found out that this case is treated as a mystery, as the scroff is regarded as affording a sovereign opportunity for casting out devils. Any one bewitched has only to place himself in contact with the scroff to be infallibly cured.

(Shanghai Courier)

August 24th, 1874.

We have noticed that the recent arrival of a discontented public has been agitating itself in Shanghai, with reference to a sanitary subcommittee for our charging port.

However, if no better places than those described by Mr. Seward in his interesting letter can be brought forward to compete, I fancy our public will continue to be par excellence a representation of Chinese public opinion.

We observe that the public in Shanghai appear to be a little disturbed by the sudden flight of law and justice to the North; but, when they are informed that both the Chinese Judge and the Police Magistrate are not enjoying perfect holiday up here, they may be more disposed to bear that temporary dereliction of equity. The facts are these. On additional evidence, we have been able to ascertain that the scroff was sent to the office of Mr. Fawcett, Sir Edward Honeywood's agent to issue his warrant for Mr. Fawcett's release, and, as certain other complications became determined with the case, it has been thought best that the whole judicial machinery should be set in motion to clear up what (to celestial eyes at any rate) appears to be still a mystery. Mr. Honeywood, who is a member of the British Legation, will remain until the trial is over.

We bear that the visit of the two Secretaries to the Chinese Legation will remain until the trial is over, though no such a scandal, and it is probable that the triple sacrifice on our river bank was to save a hecatomb equally guilty. You have probably heard that the Chinese
